

PROBE OF INAUGURAL "PARTY" IS ORDERED

General Holway Moves to Discredit Reports of Excesses at Madison.

BLAME BLAINE'S ENEMIES

May Bar Correspondents Who Are Not Friendly to New Administration.

By United Press Leased Wire.
Madison, Wis.—An official "inquiry" by Adjutant General Orlando Holway was scheduled to begin at 5 o'clock this afternoon in an effort to discredit reports that Monday night's inaugural ball was not all that it should have been.

Gov. John J. Blaine and advisors were busy yesterday preparing their explanation of the affair by which they hope to convince the state that reports of liquor, extravagance and indiscrete dancing were merely the propaganda of "big business" seeking to discredit the progressive La Follette Non-Partisan league administration.

The Madison Capitol Times, official organ of La Follette, sounded the keynote in a long editorial last night which concluded:

"There is no greater problem before the progressives of Wisconsin than to devise ways and means to reach the people with the truth which is denied them by the system press. The Blaine administration can expect only misrepresentation from the newspapers of the state. That condition need not prevail if the people can be shown the way or have their own newspapers."

May Bar Correspondents.

Threats were made today by La Follette leaders that the legislature which convenes here January 12 will be asked to bar from the press gallery correspondents sending out reports adverse to the Blaine administration. The senate, however, is known to be controlled by the Lenroot anti-La Follette republican faction while the house is considered a toss-up by political leaders.

The program of today's "inquiry" calls for an attempt to court martial the officer of the Wisconsin guardsmen in command at the state house Monday evening during the ball, and who is blamed for having told newspapermen that several of his men had obtained liquor from unknown sources in the state house. Mimeographed copies of the story of the inaugural ball were prepared yesterday at the state house and sent out to members of the committee in charge of the inaugural ball.

Chaperons to Testify.

An effort will be made, it is believed, to have the chaperons of the evening testify under oath at the "inquiry" that they saw no "shimmying," "toddling" or other intimate dancing by the many University of Wisconsin students in attendance.

The university for the past few weeks has been vigorously fighting these and other "check-to-check" dances.

Adjutant General Orlando Holway upon his return to Madison this morning, however, denied that an attempt will be made to court martial the officer in charge who is blamed by the Blaine administration leaders for having told newspapermen that the soldiers had obtained liquor from unknown sources during the ball.

Why The Laugh?

L. G. K. MARTENS

The puzzle here is: Why does Bolshieff "Ambassador" Martens laugh? Would you laugh if you were ordered to Russia now? He was snapped as he visited the Department of Labor in Washington following orders for his deportation.

TRADE RELATIONS MAY GOVERN RUSS MILITARY DRIVE

Great Britain and Russia Near Agreement on Resumption of Commerce.

By United Press Leased Wire.
London.—Russia's military campaign next summer will be governed by the outcome of her trade negotiations, it became apparent here today.

Trade, it was believed, will determine what region shall be attacked as well as the time of the campaign.

Trading with Great Britain has been in abeyance for more than six months but a sort of unofficial commerce has been built up as a nucleus for full resumption of business relations. Meanwhile, the two countries are disputing over the British demand that the soviet government cease scattering propaganda.

In some quarters it was charged Russia is using her military concentrations as a threat to bring about trade resumption.

Aside from the difficulties of reaching an agreement to resume trade, there will be no trouble in adjusting the systems employed by Britain and the communist government, it was learned today.

A tentative plan has been devised under which "the Russian trading corporation" will be formed. This corporation would be capitalized at 10,000,000 pounds half subscribed by Russia and half in Great Britain. The Russian and British branches of the corporation would split their profits evenly, the former operating as a monopoly in Russia as a branch of the government.

The British branch would be empowered to purchase from manufacturers of their own country all Russian products in the British empire.

DOCTORS AND DRUGGISTS ARE MODERN BARKEEPERS

By United Press Leased Wire.
Chicago.—Physicians and druggists have taken the place of saloonkeepers according to Ralph Stone, state prohibition director who today waged a strenuous campaign against violators of the prohibition law. Through efforts of Stone more than 300 wholesale liquor dealers today were ordered to cease selling liquor. The federal government, acting on Stone's suggestion, revoked their liquor permits.

"It is ridiculous to believe that more than a third of the whisky prescribed is used as a medicine," said Stone.

Evidence to the effect that many Chicago brewers are manufacturing beer with a "kick" in it is to be presented to a federal grand jury this week.

ADVISES AGAINST JAP ALLIANCE WITH BRITAIN

By United Press Leased Wire.
Tokyo.—The Osaka Asahi, a leading newspaper, today strongly urged that the Anglo-Japanese alliance be not renewed.

The Asahi declared that non-renewal of the alliance would remove a cause for friction with America.

The Jiji today urged the reduction of the Japanese army on the grounds that Russia has collapsed militarily.

PENROSE TAKES UP BATTLE FOR HIGHER TARIFF

Passage of Fordney Emergency Tariff Bill Assured by Penrose's Support.

WOULD HELP THE FARMER

Pennsylvania Senator Denies Rivalry Exists Between East and West.

By United Press Leased Wire.
Washington.—Senator Penrose, chairman of the senate finance committee, today abandoned his opposition to the Fordney emergency tariff bill and announced he would support and push it to passage at the present session of congress.

Penrose's announcement changes the aspect of the tariff and taxation situation on which hearings began today before the senate finance committee and the house ways and means committee.

Penrose had been the only republican member of the finance committee to oppose emergency tariff and his cooperation with democrats was counted on to prevent passage of the measure. Now its enactment is deemed certain despite attacks of its opponents who say it will cause increased food prices.

Would Save Farmers

Penrose in his statement said he would like to see some changes in rates and expressed the hope the house would agree to this. He joined with other supporters of the tariff in saying the prohibitive duties it carried are necessary to save the farmers of the west.

"I desire to correct a misunderstanding which seems to have gotten abroad concerning the status of the so-called emergency tariff bills," Penrose said in a formal statement.

"There is really no difference of opinion among republicans upon this measure."

"As a consistent protectionist, I have advocated adequate protective duties for every industry, throughout the country regardless of section. Hence, I would be the last man in the country to hesitate about supporting an emergency measure of this kind. It is in the opinion of my colleagues it is urgently required. I shall therefore support this bill and do what I can to secure its passage at the present session of congress."

No Rivalry Exists

"The impression that has been spread before the public that there is a difference of rivalry between the manufacturing east and the more agricultural south and west on this tariff bill is absolutely without foundation."

Penrose's statement was issued at the close of the morning hearing before the senate committee at which J. P. Hagenbarth, president of the National Wool Growers' association, testified.

Penrose said it is his intention to bring these hearings to a close next Tuesday and report the emergency bill as soon thereafter as possible.

Hagenbarth told the committee western wool raisers were facing ruin from competition of foreign wool growers and urged the tariff to protect them.

Hagenbarth said the wool from Uruguay has been selling for 20 cents per pound here while western wool of the same quality sold in Boston for 14 cents. He also exhibited samples of western wool which sold in Boston for 9 cents.

HOOVER HAS ENMITY OF BIG POLITICIANS

By United Press Leased Wire.
Marion, Ohio.—Powerful political enemies may succeed in keeping Herbert Hoover out of the Harding cabinet according to information here today.

He had been tentatively slated for a post, probably labor, but activity among his political opponents has recently become so strong as to create a serious doubt in the mind of President-elect Harding about appointing him.

Harding holds the former food administrator in high regard and he believes he would be a valuable man in the cabinet.

Former opposition of Senator Boies Penrose and Senator Hiram Johnson, one an old guard leader and the other the foremost of progressives, is powerful.

In addition there is strong opposition to Hoover from farmers who are still wrangling over the price fixing activities of the food administration during the war.

CUT ESTIMATES FOR U. S. EXPENSES BILL

By United Press Leased Wire.
Washington.—The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was reported to the house today, carrying a recommendation for a total of $112,705,748.75 for the fiscal year beginning next July.

According to the report of Representative Wood, Indiana, who submitted the bill, the appropriation recommended in the bill is $5,751,461.36 less than the appropriations for the present fiscal year which totalled $118,457,190.11 and is $2,746,886.22 less than amount requested in the estimates which aggregated $116,032,624.91.

Havana.—General Enoch Crowder, of the United States army, arrived here today on the warship Minnesota to investigate the Cuban situation, complicated by a dispute over the result of the presidential election.

Salutes marked the Minnesota's arrival. The American minister and his military attaché boarded the ship immediately. Crowder planned to confer with President Menocal this afternoon or tomorrow.

NO REASON FOR ALARM IN CUBA

(Copyright, 1921 by United Press)

Havana.—Cuba today is richer than ever notwithstanding the transitory crisis which the banks and her principal industry are now undergoing and which soon will be terminated.

The political situation is normal and if the electorate period has been prolonged, it is due exclusively to the tenacity and technical skill with which the defeated candidates, through their attorneys and agents, have availed themselves of all grounds of appeal established in the new electoral code and have persisted in these appeals before the courts.

The partial elections that will have to be effected in some districts will not delay the result.

There is no reason for alarm, Cuba and her government are serenely confident of the future of a country, ambitious as few others are, has the right to hope for.

The relations between Cuba and the United States are more cordial than ever.

ALLEGED SLAYER IS DESERTED BY PALS

By United Press Leased Wire.
Bridgeport, Conn.—Deserted by the woman he loved and his own pal, Edward B. Wade took up the fight for his life in court here, where he is on trial for the murder of George Nott, husband of his mistress.

The defense faced the task of breaking down the testimony presented by Mrs. Ethel H. Nott widow of the murdered man, and John E. Johnston, Wade's friend, both of whom are jointly charged with the murder.

They placed the entire responsibility for planning and execution of the crime squarely on Wade. The state rested today.

The first witness called by the defense was the defendant's father, Albert O. Wade, a milk dealer, for whom young Wade drove a milk wagon.

The witness under questioning of Attorney Comely, described young Wade's boyhood. He said Wade had only completed the third grade when he left the school at the age of 17.

"After delivering milk ten years, I do not believe he can remember ten names out of the 300 customers we had," the witness said.

GOLOSH GL'DE MAKES BOW IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee.—While condemnation reigns in Madison, the state capital, over reported "shimmying" and "toddling" in nooks of the capital during the inaugural ball, the "golosh glide" has made its appearance here.

Yes, the "dappers" go right on on the floor with their golosh clasp jingling like the tambourines of dancers in old Madrid.

The one-step and fox-trot have been turned into the golosh glide, and at downtown cafes it is not unusual to see women patrons dancing with their overshoes on. And it was done at the Milwaukee Athletic club.

"No we have no rules against the girls wearing their overshoes if they want to," N. Dawson, assistant manager of the club, said.

"I don't think the fashion is going to be followed by many people here though."

WAR FINANCE CORPORATION HAS NO FUNDS

Democrats Are in No Hurry to Follow Instructions From Congress.

PASS BUCK TO REPUBLICANS

Little Chance Action Will Be Taken Until New Administration Is In.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1921)

Washington.—Ten men may lead a horse to water but many times ten men cannot make him drink. That's an old saying but applies exactly to the situation that has arisen between congress and the treasury department in connection with the final passage over President Wilson's veto of the bill to revive the war finance corporation and extend financial aid to agricultural and export enterprise.

Congress may direct the war finance corporation to resume business but the self-same congress has left it to the discretion of the corporation as to how and when loans shall be made and how the money shall be raised and it is a safe bet that it will be a new war finance corporation fully responsible to the republican administration after March 4, which shall carry the burden of what leading republicans like Senator Penrose former Speaker Joe Cannon and Chairman Good of the house appropriations committee who voted to sustain President Wilson believe to be unwise fiscal policy.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury and one of the authors of the federal reserve act, was at the treasury building following the passage by both houses of the war finance bill, and meeting the writer he said:

Miserable Imposture

"Did you notice the grain cotton markets go up as a consequence of the nonsense in congress? Of course not. Well, you can quote me as saying the whole thing is the most miserable imposture ever practiced on the American public by politicians."

Mr. Glass seems to think that most members of congress knew the passage of the bill would not add the farmers but voted for the measure in order to give the impression to their constituents that aid was really being extended.

"Where is the money coming from?" queried Mr. Glass.

"Well, the war finance act passed during the war authorized the appropriation of five hundred millions of dollars as capital stock for the corporation," suggested the writer.

No Money Available

"Yes," said Mr. Glass, "but if you read the law you will see that it says five hundred millions dollars are here by appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated and there isn't a cent in the treasury. A lot of fellows on the hill seem to think the original five hundred million dollars is still in the treasury. It was turned back into the general fund long ago and the only way to get money now is for the treasury to go out in the open market and borrow it."

Mr. Houston, secretary of the treasury, has insisted that government bonds and other obligations would be affected if the government continued to borrow money from the general public at high interest rates and he has taken the position which the leading financiers of the world unanimously adopted at the business international conference at London, that the time had passed for government loans to private individuals.

Up to G. O. P.

However, there is a more practical reason for the probable failure of the war finance corporation to function at all under the present administration.

The law says three members constitute a quorum. Secretary Houston, Charles H. and his assistant, George R. Cocks, and August McLean, assistant secretary of the treasury, are the three members of the war finance corporation and the latter two are in absolute accord with Mr. Houston. The two vacancies need not be filled.

Messrs. Houston and McLean probably will resign on March 4 and it will become necessary for the next administration to create an entirely new board. Then the responsibility for further borrowing and the actual extension of credit will have to be borne by the republican president and secretary of the treasury.

Until March 4 there will be a natural delay in getting started anyway because it takes considerable time to examine the applications for loans and to determine whether the security given is acceptable. There is no chance of loan through the war finance corporation for the next two months at least and probably for some time after that as it will take the new secretary of the treasury some time to get his bearings. By the time spring comes the entire agricultural situation is expected to have changed and those who have been holding production for high prices on the expectation of immediate aid from the war finance corporation to finance exports will have had to dispose of their goods.

NORMAL LIFE IN DUBLIN

Martial Rule Is Evident Only at Night After Curfew
Closes Houses.

By United Press Leased Wire.
(The United Press sent Charles M. McCann to Ireland as a reporter—to see what was going on there and tell American newspaper readers about it without color, or bias, or favor to either side. All sorts of rumors and reports are coming out of Ireland.)

McCann's object is to get behind the rumors and reports and ascertain the truth, the real attitude of the people toward peace and the way they are living in this period of civil war.)

RY CHARLES MCCANN

(Copyright 1921, by the United Press)
Dublin.—Peace in Ireland on the basis of the new home rule act was regarded as a certainty here today.

Only the most radical believe the fight can go on indefinitely with the "Irish republic" finally winning complete freedom. The peace which is expected, however, probably will not come until there has been another outbreak of violence and Dublin has been put under martial law, according to my observations here.

Emmonn De Valera, the returned "president," is a big factor in the situation. A statement from him is expected hourly. It is believed the message will advocate peace and the operation of Irish government under the home rule act.

De Valera in Hiding

De Valera's presence in Ireland is admitted and evidence is increasing that the government will treat him as representing the Dail Eireann. Despite a belief that he will be well received by the government, his hiding place is carefully guarded. It was feared he would be jailed, perhaps put to death by enthusiastic captors, if he were found before negotiations are begun.

The nature of his forthcoming statement is unknown. It is believed, however, that he will urge peace and advise Sinn Fein members to agree to the government's home rule act, electing a Sinn Fein parliament for south Ireland rather than permitting unionists to organize it.

The message has been delayed because of the circuitous route it must take to reach the public through the newspapers. The soldiers are continuing the raiding of Sinn Fein gathering places. Early yesterday the Imperial hotel was raided and five supposedly important arrests were made. The "Rev. Brother" Darryl, leaping from a window of the hotel, was shot and killed.

Run Four Houses

At Meelin, near Cork, soldiers burned four houses as punishment for an ambush at New Market. Shots were said to have been fired from the houses destroyed by military order.

Visitors arrive here expecting to find the streets swarming with heavily armed soldiers, with residents fearfully creeping about the streets.

Instead of that, they find a normal life during the day. At dusk they see long queues forming in front of movie palaces and the streets crowded with promenaders.

Among the promenaders will be found young soldiers, twirling swagger sticks as they swing along with fellows from the troops or with their own "shattered" guns.

At 9 o'clock darkness descends. That is the curfew hour. The lights go out in the shops, iron shutters are banged into place, the theatre lights blink out and the crowds hurry homeward.

At 9.30, perhaps, as last night, those indoors will hear a trio of far-away, echoing reports, followed by dead silence.

"The war's on again," someone ventures.

"Flivver back firing," suggests another.

Afraid of Noise

At 9.45 a military lorry bearing three soldiers has the middle of Sackville street—Dublin's broadway—to itself. It rolls along slowly, though hooting as if racing to a fight. A series of reports, like pistol shots, will be heard. A party of girls, held in leaving the theatre, shrink momentarily at this clasp hands and run for home.

Men feel their nervousness. Some cross their eyes and scowl down the city street. At 10 p. m. Dublin is a city deserted, with darkened houses and streets occupied in the by people nor trams or other vehicles. The city has been turned over to the soldiers.

Permits are issued to those who must be out after 10 o'clock, but most persons fear to use them.

Will Not Seek Peace

Dublin.—President Emmonn De Valera soon will issue a manifesto denouncing Sinn Fein's peace policy with England, according to the Irish press.

De Valera's secretary was up and at it last night.

Mother's Story Saves Lives Of Balloonists

Tale Inspires Intrepid Wan-

By James R. Kelly

Madison, Ont.—"The first real thrill to hit this post since the arrival of the Indian couriers, last Sunday announcing that the United States naval aeronauts, Lieutenants Farrell, Hinton and Klour, had landed safely near James Bay, occurred this morning when the huskies which brought out the Indian messenger, set up a terrific howling and tugged at their chains as though wanting to go north on the Missinabi river which runs past this post. The commotion was explained several minutes later when a big yellow husky was seen coming down the trail on the frozen stream. He had slipped his harness and came on ahead of the outfit he was helping transport. He was identified as belonging to a camp about sixty miles from here. This is, the Indians tell me, indicative that a party has left for this post with skins and that the trail for the Americans will be in excellent condition, and that the snow will be frozen so hard by last night's and today's severe cold that they will be able to walk without snowshoes and make a fast trip.

Old timers here say it would be impossible to handle a team up in blanketed sleds that the trail would be too hard to keep from freezing on this trail one day like today and that travelers have to keep themselves warm by running or wallowing except when camped at night.

Saved By Mother's Story

Camps are made in the open party tramp snow up to a wall of packed brush in snow drifts as they go.

The tale of the "Star of the Legion" heard at his mother's knee is responsible for the safety of Lieut. Farrell and his two companions, according to the story told me by Michael, backed up by his Cree companion, Sackler, Martin and Harland Verner.

"The balloon came down on the western side of Meade river, eleven miles directly west of the river and nine miles north of Meade Factory," said Michael, who spoke perfect English.

"We were all in a panic and they dropped out of the sky, but after talking to the Cree Indians we were able to get them out of the forest."

HEARS FROM BROTHER FOR FIRST TIME IN 17 YEARS

E. M. Carroll has at least one thing to be thankful for at the beginning of the new year. On New Year's day he received a letter that seemed like a message from the dead. It was from a brother, John Carroll, whom he had not seen since he was nine years old. The brother left for the Klondike several years ago, and his family had long since supposed he was dead. However, John Carroll returned recently to Fresno, California, and located Mr. Carroll in Appleton through relatives in his home town. "It is the first time in seventeen years that I heard from my brother," said Mr. Carroll.

SOVIET LURED WORKERS RETURN TO THEIR HOMES

(Special to Post-Crescent) Shanghai—Workmen lured to Russia from other countries by the Bolshevik government are hustling back home by return train, says the Russian Echo, Shanghai newspaper. "About 250 Scandinavians tried to settle in Russia," says the Echo. "The Bolshevik government gave them all sorts of privileges, but they bolted on account of dreadful privations." Fifty thousand German workmen, mostly technical engineers and miners, are arriving in the Ural mountains on guarantees that their settlement is to have autonomous rights making it independent of the Soviet.

LIBRARY EMPLOYEES SALARIES

It seems quite appropriate that the library board should again bring up the matter of salary increases at its meeting Tuesday evening, with the idea of re-considering the action taken at a previous meeting when the assistant librarian's salary was increased $60.00 a month and placed on an equal basis with that of the librarian.

Viewed from a purely business standpoint, this unusual action of placing the salaries of both librarian and her assistant upon the same basis does not conform with the method used in running institutions and businesses, either public or private. A manager is regarded as a better paid individual than his assistant and this holds true almost universally.

Why our library board should create like salaries for the librarian and her assistant is a matter of public concern, as it is public monies with which this institution is supported.

If the assistant librarian is to receive the same salary as that of the librarian it indicates either one or two things. One is the reflection upon the ability and competency of the present librarian. The other is that the assistant librarian is being paid too much in comparison with other salaried employees of the library.

The present librarian was, however, engaged after most thorough investigation. Her ability and qualifications were found to be of the highest type, and she was elected unanimously for the position.

Seemingly then in order to be consistent the library board must seriously re-consider its earlier action and either now increase all salaries among library employees except that of the assistant librarian or reduce the salary of the assistant librarian to a point more nearly in comparison with the rank of the position occupied. It must be remembered that vested in the librarian, as in the manager of any other institution is the responsibility that makes for the success or failure of that institution. This responsibility should be recognized by the library board, the same as by the board of directors of any other business institution.

An increase in salaries all along the line with the one exception must be carefully considered as to its reference to the budget allowed for maintaining the library. Extravagant increases in salaries are bound to impair the efficiency of other branches of the library. Books cannot be purchased without sufficient funds and all monies spent for salaries over and above what should be adequate for a city the size of Appleton will detract from the work of the library in other directions.

Surely the board cannot pass the matter by without some further action and still meet with public approval. It must at least recognize that one salary is too high in comparison and another at $50.00 a month is much too low when considered by the same analysis. It is to be hoped that the committee appointed for the purpose of investigating the situation and salaries in other cities will have a practical solution for the present situation to present at the next meeting of the library board.

RESOLUTIONS

With the advent of the New Year it might be well for those inclined to "resolve" to take stock of the resolutions they made at the beginning of last year. In all probability most of them will discover a deficit. In the majority of cases we fear the books will not balance. In the average life resolutions broken far exceed resolutions kept.

Resolution is the most perishable flower of human character. Its cultivation is the most difficult of enterprises. It is easier to wink at one's faults than to fight them out; to compromise rather than to insist on the strict letter of the New Year contract one makes with ones self.

A man making a business agreement with another demands fulfillment of the pledge in all its terms and requirements. But he is much easier with himself. Conscience says: "But you promised faithfully to do this." The man answers: "Oh, well, what's the difference?"—and breaks the contract with conscience.

The trouble is the average resolution is a sort of secret treaty. If resolutions were open covenants, openly arrived at, more resolutions would be kept.

THIS YEAR AND BUILDING

One of the principal factors in determining the extent to which commercial activity is to be renewed this year is construction. There is not a city in the country, not a county in a state, not a railroad that is not confronted by building necessities. In the aggregate these construction needs represent perhaps the largest opportunity for making business and increased prosperity.

Take our own city for instance. During the last year or year and a half many large building projects have been announced, ranging all the way from factory improvements to office buildings, civic undertakings, etc. Plans for erecting homes on a big scale have been considered and given to the public. But very little of this construction work, as a matter of fact, has materialized. Enterprises of various kinds which involve the expenditure of much money in building are held up. They have not been abandoned, and those behind them are only waiting for more favorable conditions to proceed with the improvements.

The same conditions are to be found everywhere. They exist in large as well as small cities. Chicago has not had any building, relatively speaking, for several years. Its business section has undergone no change, although its mercantile, commercial, hotel and civic expansions demand heavy outlays for construction.

If we could accurately total up suspended undertakings in the building line all over the country we would find that they ran into an enormous sum. They have been deferred for two reasons. One is the restrictions placed upon credit and the high money rates. The other is the excessive cost of building. Inasmuch as capital put into building represents an investment upon which future rather than immediate returns must determine its soundness, capital has not felt willing to reenter this field until what are to be regarded as normal conditions are restored.

Mr. Gary says prices must go still lower, despite the fact that in many if not most lines they have dropped to a point where further reductions would enforce widespread cuts in wages and also lowering of the standard of living. Consistency would seem to require more substantial reductions in steel prices, but they are not announced. Coming to the building field generally, a Chicago authority says the price of materials, despite some reductions in lumber prices, is still 17 1/2 per cent higher than in 1914.

Regardless of what the precise facts are, it is clear, we think, that building costs are still high, so far as inviting a general and extensive return to construction is concerned. Increases of from 150 to 200 per cent over pre-war prices certainly cannot be justified. Even 100 per cent advances must be considered liberal for sustaining wages and profits. Perhaps even lower percentages of increase are possible for the maintenance of practically the present standards of living.

A resumption of building is necessary to a full recovery from our economic indisposition. Contractors are not to blame for a situation which is holding building down to a minimum. The responsibility goes back largely to manufacturers of materials. Possibly too wage scales in the building trades must be eased off, as labor costs have been regarded by many prospective builders as excessive. We must have a frank consideration of these facts and frank treatment. If there is the right kind of cooperation between manufacturers, labor and contractors on the one hand and capital ready to go into construction on the other, we can make the year 1921 one of the greatest building years in our history. Added to the vast private enterprises planned there are deferred public works running into the hundreds of millions if not billions, that are urgently needed. Coordinated and right action will start building on a wholesale scale. To secure it there is only one fundamental essential, and that is a willingness all along the line to take a reasonable profit and to abandon one and for all the idea that war-time profits are possible or even desirable in peace times.

GENERAL MALAISE

General Malaise, the leader of the First Symptoms in so many battles with our microbial enemies, is closely related to the well-known General Debility, the members of whose muscular family are so fond of That Tired Feeling—until they become so sophisticated enough to call it Autointoxication.

If you've ever entertained That Tired Feeling you can realize without a detailed description just how General Malaise feels. If you've ever come down with anything interesting to a busy physician, such as typhoid fever or the flu, you are intimately acquainted with the General. Then there is still another distant relative, something like a second or third cousin, though I may be presumptuous in speaking of a second or third cousin—is there such a relation?—and we have all met this distant relative masquerading as muscle soreness or stiffness after unusually vigorous exertion.

Some seemingly paradoxical physiologic facts may be dragged in here. Muscle soreness or stiffness following extraordinary exertion is produced by incompletely burned or oxidized cell substances, an acid character retained in the muscle tissues. That tired feeling is produced by incomplete disposal or combustion of the everyday waste products of ordinary life. Any charlatan can cite the two foregoing physiologic truths and thereby "explain" how his pill, liniment, manipulation or mysterious touch remedies the trouble. A third physiologic fact is that the relief of soreness or stiffness following hard exercise or the weariness and fatigue following physical strain depends on the activity of metabolism, or in other words it depends on how well the vital fire burns. Thus, some mild general exercises taken at something like regular six or eight hour intervals following severe exertions hasten the disappearance of or quite prevent muscle soreness and stiffness, whereas complete rest favors such soreness. The reason for that is a fourth and very important physiologic truth, namely, that exercise increases the absorption of oxygen and stimulates metabolism, burns up waste matter more thoroughly. For the same reason—physiologic truth number five—the fatigue or exhaustion following tremendous strain is relieved or overcome more promptly by rest without sleep than by sleep, since in sleep metabolism slows down considerably below the ordinary resting rate.

I dwell on the importance of exercise in the business of keeping well with a mixture of earnestness and diffidence, for the exercise is the most useful remedy in two-edged. It is fine for everybody to use in order to KEEP well, but it is no cure-all such as the self-appointed physical culture "expert" would have patrons believe. For example it is potent in preventing that tired feeling and autointoxication, but it would not be advisable for General Malaise.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nothing Wrong

Frequently I can't feel the beat of my heart, only faintly. Is it an indication of anything wrong? (S. B.)

ANSWER—No.

Kindly inform me if there is any danger of catching tuberculosis from a person by kissing. (Miss N. W.)

ANSWER—Yes, a very great danger.

Bring Them Out, is Right
Doesn't a pretty ankle look better in a high heel slipper? And isn't a good figure somehow better set off in a corset? You know, we women are all more or less vain, and wish to bring out our assets. (Miss E. M.)

ANSWER—Ballroom slippers and dinner gowns do not look exactly right on the street. A pretty ankle is one that doesn't depend on a high heel. A good figure is one that needs no spools to set it off. These things are camouflage that conceal no better than a drug store complexion does.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Thursday, Jan. 9, 1896

Peter R. Schmidt of Ellington was in the city on business.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Ramey were planning to leave on an extended trip to Florida the last of the month. President Samuel Plantz was to occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church at Wausau the following Sunday morning.

J. W. McGovern attended the dedication of the new castle hall of Green Bay Knights of Pythias the evening previous.

The new elevator of the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company was completed and in operation.

Peter Christensen, who was caught on a revolving shaft at the Badger paper mill at Kaukauna, died of his injuries.

The county board was to hold an adjourned session at the courthouse the following Tuesday.

Among those who delivered brief addresses at the installation of the officers of the Royal Arcanum were Humphrey Pierce, J. T. Reeve, F. J. Harwood, Thomas Pearson, Capt. Fred Heinemann and D. E. Bailey.

The prize winners at the Harmonie skat tournament were Anton Rechner, Fred Pauls, H. D. Smith and William Wenzel. Among the Kaukauna players present were Oscar Thilman, Julius Kuehn, Martin Hemel and A. A. Nugent.

The Fox River Valley conference of the Wisconsin Lutheran Synod closed a two days' session at St. Paul Lutheran church. New officers elected were: President, the Rev. J. DeJung, Rhinelander; secretary, the Rev. A. Spiering, New London; inspector, the Rev. P. W. Hennenthal, Kaukauna.

Hugh O'Neill, brother of Mrs. Philip Dean, was killed in the railroad yards at Chicago, where he was employed.

Mrs. Samuel Boyd fractured her wrist by a fall on the frozen ground.

The Rev. John Gensike, formerly of Appleton, accepted a call to the pastorate of a Lutheran church at Winneconne.

SITTING ON A HOT STOVE

Scientific machines record the worst earthquake that has taken place on the earth for several years. Some scientists think it was a submarine quake, possibly a new mountain range being erected at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean. Let us hope so.

The Japanese will yawn when they read about this latest quake. They recorded 821 quakes in eight years. That's three a day. Away back in 1702, Yoddo, Japan, had the worst earthquake in recorded history. It killed 200,000 people.

What causes earthquakes? Scientists do not agree. Some attribute them to volcanic action, others to slipping or sliding of the earth's crust, still others to shrinking of the earth. "We really don't know," says Dr. Andrew H. Palmer of the United States Weather Bureau.

Scientists figure that the heat at the center of the earth is 125,000 degrees Centigrade. This is a hot stove to be sitting on. But each year the insulating crust protecting us against the terrific underground heat is said to become thicker, due to the earth's steady cooling.

Centuries Of Dolls.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

New York City—Everybody who is reading H. G. Wells' slender thesis on the history of the world this season has come to realize with a shock how incredibly young the race is.

It seems only a few years ago that cave men were crossing the Atlantic, and the new revolutionary invention of fire building, and you feel as if you can almost remember Remes II.

But if you aren't reading Wells, consider the case of dolls. It will prove the same thing.

Dolls are tremendously popular this season. They are enjoying a tremendous vogue on stage, and sales managers of toy departments are delighted with the huge number of Christmas dolls that were sold. Let, take a look into history, or even a city museum, and you find the same thing occurring thousands of years ago. Dolls were quite as much in demand in Cleopatra's time, and the dolls of that day were just as deserving of admiration, too. That is, they were just as beautiful and accomplished.

Who played with the first doll and when, remains a baffling mystery, but it is definitely suspected that the species began to appear soon after the cave man settled down to permanent domestic life. Dolls of a crude sort are found among the belongings of the most primitive tribes, where they usually possess some religious significance having to do with the sun or snakes, or whatever it is that the tribe worships.

Although there is no trace of them, the first civilized dolls are supposed to have occurred in the Orient at the time when the Orient was almost all of the known world, for the early mythology of the country abounds with stories concerning them. They were made, it is believed, in the image of gods, but in every other way they were quite human. Often they were moved their hands and closed their eyes and talked, even as they do today, only the talking was accomplished by the insertion of a talking starting into their hollow anatomies.

Dolls of Long Ago

With the rise of the early Egyptian empire, we find the doll fully established as an important accessory to child life. It was probably more varied and amusing in 2000 B. C., than it has ever been since, in spite of the many generations of doll specialists that have followed. In some cases it had a paddle shaped body, painted with black and white squares—a pattern which often led the adults of the household to borrow it for a game of checkers or chess. In others, its wooden body was brightly painted like a mummy case and often bore a lucky sign, such as the picture of a pig. Sometimes it also had flowing locks consisting of mud beads made from the mud of the sacred river Nile. Like the cat, the doll was greatly esteemed as a household pet in those days, and was frequently mummified along with its mistress.

In China and Japan the doll long ago reached a high state of development. It was there that the puppet and shadow dolls originated, and there also that the polydip doll, which cannot be made to lie down, was first produced. The first dolls of the Mongolian Empire were made to represent gods and later to represent prominent priests or members of the Emperor's family. Doll gods are still used in the Chinese joss houses, while in Japan they are still patterned after prominent citizens, such as the minister of war and the honorable superintendent of education.

In China, one of the most popular doll versions is that made of donkey skin, with the head of a human being and the body of a fish, bird or some other animal. This doll is flat, and with the aid of a sheet, and dark lantern, lends itself admirably to shadow play. It is believed that the first puppet play, which is being revived to such a large extent today, originated in China.

Japanese Dolls

Dolls have always been highly regarded in Japan, where many curious customs have grown up around them. According to one of these, every Japanese baby girl whose family could afford it, was presented with what is known as a "hina"—a set of dolls, representing the Mikado and his wife and their favorite musicians and courtiers. The "hina" was not played with daily, like other common dolls, but was kept in a large vault, known as the "gowdown" and brought forth only on holidays. Upon the marriage of the Japanese maiden, the "hina" became the property of her husband, who guarded it securely until the marriage of his eldest son when it would be turned over to him. In this way doll collections grew in Japan with every passing generation so that when a prominent citizen died his property included an enormous and valuable doll collection.

Japan still celebrates Doll Day when every shop is filled with dolls. More dolls are sold on this day in Japan than are sold in this country during Christmas. It is a day of great festivity. But not so Doll Day in India, which is a time of great lamentation and sadness. For then, the little girls of India bring their dolls to the banks of the River Ganges, and, weeping, throw them into its current, customs having decreed that the river must receive this sacrifice. Furthermore, for three months after this dramatic ceremonial, play with dolls is prohibited, and even doll-making is regarded with stern disfavor.

The materials of which dolls are made have varied but little in all the thousands of years of their history, according to the owner of a remarkable doll collection in a New York art gallery. The Greek dolls were of wax and the Egyptian dolls of wood, and there is still a little stuffed doll in existence, which scientists aver is 1,700 years old. During all this time, however, doll-makers have shown the same characteristics. That is, the ancient Greeks as well as modern Americans have tried—at intervals—of producing ideally beautiful dolls, and have deliberately striven to produce sensational results in the comic or ugly mannish. Thus, we have the kowpie and the golliwog and homely realistic doll babies.

Dolls for Grown-ups

"In the 14th century," says this authority, "dolls had a tremendous vogue among adults. They were made in replica of the human form, upon which could be displayed the latest fashions from Paris. Royalties used to send these elaborately dressed mannikins to each other, and they managed to keep a dull German court entertained for days. Expensive and elaborately dressed dolls played a conspicuous role in the extravagant court life of the French Louises.

"In a way," continued our doll man reflectively, "the doll, like higher forms of art, is indicative of the nature of a nation's civilization. The Greek doll was simple and artistic; the Egyptian mysteriously fashioned and marked with curious hieroglyphics; there was practically no doll at all during the Puritan regime, while it flourished in every conceivable elaboration during the Italian Renaissance; in India it is the victim of a morbid custom, and in Japan it is a token of rank.

"Today," the most popular doll in the European world, despite the war, is the German image, with its flawless countenance and blue eyes and flaxen hair—an object of great mechanical perfection without a touch of art, is it not?" he added gloomily, "indicative of our age?"

But as we looked at the photographs of the German doll and the supposed Greek doll which the doll man showed us, we could not agree that one was any worse than the other. What we did feel was a great disappointment in man. For in the thousands of years that the race has been rolling over the globe, it seems to have acquired so little polish, the doll that we esteem so highly today is virtually the same doll they esteemed in the days when the pyramids were new.

Q. Does Warren G. Harding have the right to be a Senator and an elected President at the same time? J. M.

A. It would not be possible for a man to be a Senator and a President of the United States at the same time. At this time Mr. Harding is only President-elect, the office of President being held by President Wilson, whose term of office will not expire until March 4th, 1921. By that time Mr. Harding's term as Senator will also have expired.

Q. I saw in a guidebook to Niagara Falls the statement that in the year 1848 the Falls ran dry. Please inform me the reason of this. W. T.

A. The winter of 1847-1848 was extraordinarily severe in this country. Heavy ice formed in Lake Erie. When it was broken up during the latter part of March, the winds swept the ice into the entrance of the Niagara River at Buffalo, where it jammed in a solid mass completely choking the outlet of Lake Erie, with the result that on March 29, 1848, the Falls of Niagara were practically dry.

Q. Who suggested the observation of Arbor Day, and how generally is it celebrated? H. J. P.

A. B. G. Northrop, while Secretary of the Connecticut Board of Education, in 1865, suggested an annual planting of trees under state direction.

J. Sterling Morton was probably the first, however, to propose the setting apart of a certain day annually for the purpose, and in 1872, largely through his efforts, the custom was instituted in Nebraska. At present Arbor Day is observed in nearly every state in the United States, in some states as a legal holiday, others as a school holiday. The exact date is not uniform throughout the country.

Q. How many Roman Catholics are there in France? When were Church and State first separated? L. S.

A. Although there has been no religious census of France since 1872, it is estimated that about three-fourths of the people today are at least nominally Roman Catholics. No religion is now recognized by the State. Under the law promulgated on December 9, 1905, the Church was separated from the State, and the adherents of all creeds were authorized to form associations for public worship.

Q. Can sausage be made from mutton? F. F. F.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that sausage may be made from mutton mixed with pork in much the same way as beef is used. A general formula is: mutton, 2 parts; lean, fresh pork, 1 part; fat pork, 1 part; salt and seasoning to taste. It can be made into cakes and cooked at once, or packed in skins. Homemade sausage is usually kept frozen.

Q. Was Robert Morris, who aided so greatly in financing the Revolution, ever in prison for debt? L. M.

A. Robert Morris, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, Superintendent of Finance, and later United States Senator, was in a debtor's prison in Philadelphia from August 16, 1738 until August 26, 1801, following disastrous business speculations.

Q. When was kerosene first used in lamps? R. O. J.

A. About the middle of the 19th century, kerosene was used in lamps instead of whale oil, lard, olive oil or some other such oil. This change was the result of the development of the oil wells in the United States.

Q. Would a notch cut in a tree four feet from the ground, be higher up in later years as the tree grows? G. W. G.

A. The Forest Service says that a tree grows in diameter, but the growth upward is from the highest point of the tree. Therefore, the notch cut in the tree will remain the same distance from the base.

Q. How should I proceed to get a copyright on a book? H. J.

A. The Copyright Office says that to obtain copyright protection on a book, it must be printed and published with the copyright notice, and two complete copies, with registration fee of $1.00, and application from "A. I." be deposited with the Register of Copyrights, in the Congressional Library, Washington, D. C. Application blanks may be obtained from the Register of Copyrights.

Q. What is the latest date that Easter has come on, and how is the date of Easter determined? M. E. Q.

A. The latest date that Easter has fallen on since 1800 was April 23, 1883. Easter is determined as the first Sunday after the full moon after the 21st of March.

Q. In which of George Bernard Shaw's works is the following to be found: "Sisters are women first, and sisters afterward?" H. L.

A. Shaw is not the author of the phrase, which is to be found in Rudyard Kipling's story, "False Dawn."

Q. What is the origin of fairs? L. A. W.

A. Fairs were held in early periods of civilization in Europe and Asia, and were usually of a religious origin. The Festival of Saint Denis was held in France in 620 A. D., and such fairs were introduced into Great Britain as early as 886, in the time of Alfred the Great.

When polishing a door knob or brass handles on drawers try making a collar of stiff cardboard to fit around the metal where it is fastened to the wood. Scouring powders or streams are not especially good for finely finished woods but the cardboard acts as a shield and allows one to work with greater freedom, thereby doing a better job.

Almost any cream sauce is improved by the addition of a little cheese. It's not necessary to make the sauce taste of the cheese so one knows there is cheese in it but just enough to give a richness a trifle unusual.

POTATO SALAD
2 cups sliced cooked potatoes.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble four years and was unfit to do anything and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. HURSET, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to try it.

THE BOOK OF DEBORAH

Why Can't We Accept Love, Just as We Accept Death?

Deb, Chriss and I road for half an hour at a pace much slower than we liked. Deb's mount, usually the fleetest of the three, lagged behind. At Shore Bend, Deb halted. "Sandy seems sick," she announced. "Poor old dear!"

"We dismounted."

"He does droop," we agreed.

"I'd better go home, girls," said Deb. "But don't let me run your ride this perfect morning. I'll go back alone—please, let me!"

She departed and Chriss and I lingered at Shore Bend, a high point with a wonderful view of land and lake. But the landscape over which the local artists rave had no attraction for me that morning.

I kept my eyes on Deb until she vanished at a turn of the road. I couldn't help worrying about her, riding alone over the dreariest road in the country. Poor sick Sandy might stumble, almost anything might happen.

"Perhaps we had better gallop after Deb?" I put my anxiety into this question.

"No, better not! She'd be so sorry to spoil our ride," Chriss averred. "and methinks Deb is already carrying around a full load of sorrow. She's getting awfully thin!"

"She does look frail this morning," I agreed.

"In this big, wide, wonderful world," Chriss' gesture included the far horizon where the water touched the sky. "I ask you! What the matter with Deb? With you? With Ann? With everybody?"

"My dear, we're all in love!" I sighed.

"Oh! Is that all?" Chriss shrugged her shoulders.

"It will serve!" I said pensively. "Put that in the past tense," said Chriss. "Say 'It has served.' And then stop making such a fuss about it! Love passes, believe it or not, and death, and get resigned to it, why can't we accept the idea that love passes, and get resigned to that also? Love has its big moments. Why can't we take them joyfully, be glad we had them, and then let poor Cupid go? Behold Deb, fading away for love! And you—moving in a blue fog! And that Debe Ann, flirting with Van when—"

A sharp explosion startled Chriss' horse and stopped the flow of her wisdom.

"Oh, don't be jumpy!" Chriss admonished.

"Let's go back," I suggested.

"Let's," agreed Chriss. Then with a trace of anxiety in her voice, "Isn't that Jim's new car coming?"

It was Jim's new car, speeding toward us from the turn where Deb had disappeared. We could recognize his roadster a long way off by a white band around the radiator. Instead of slowing down as it approached us, the car whizzed past us at a speed which sent Chriss' horse rearing and sent my own to side-step into the ditch. Two men were in it and both were strangers to us.

Chriss brought her mount down in her best style—she is the finest horsewoman in our town—and then she turned her head down the road we had just traveled.

"Come on!" she called to me over her shoulder. "Something has happened!"

FEW APPRENTICES IN LOCAL SHOPS

More than 75 Per Cent of All Apprentices Are in Milwaukee.

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Madison—More than three-fourths of all the apprentices in Wisconsin are in Milwaukee, according to a table published by the industrial commission in the Wisconsin Apprentice of this month. There are nearly 7,000 legally indentured apprentices in various shops in Milwaukee. About 5,000 next with 48 apprentices, and then follows Superior with 45, West Allis with 41, Fond du Lac with 29, Green Bay with 25, Manitowish with 27, La Crosse with 24, Racine with 21, and Sheboygan with 15. No other city has ten or more apprentices.

The number of apprentices in the state has been increasing rapidly since there has been a tightening up in industrial conditions. During the period of business boom it was difficult to get boys to enter apprenticeships, because they could temporarily earn more money as helpers and semi-skilled specialists. Now, however, this wage difference has disappeared and the apprentices have the advantage of being retained while semi-skilled men are being discharged.

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Madison—Madison and the capital will be ready for the opening of the 1921 session of the legislature next week. Just at present Madison is getting the more than 7,000 university students, who returned this week from their annual Christmas vacation, settled, while everyone in the capital appears to be getting ready for the legislators.

This is moving week in the state house, over forty office and committee rooms required for the members of the legislature, but which are used by state officials and departments when the legislature is not in session, are being vacated. The state has leased the Overland building on Wilson street at the foot of King street, for six years, and various departments are being moved into it as rapidly as the carpenters can arrange the various rooms.

Although the legislature does not convene until Wednesday noon, many of the members will be here on Monday and practically all will be here Tuesday for the party caucuses that evening when the legislative officials will be selected. That is the republican members will select the officials.

If there is any contest in the senate caucus it will probably be over the selection of a president pro tem. For years there was an unwritten rule in the senate that that office should go to the oldest senator in point of service, which would mean Senator Tim Burke, Green Bay, but two years ago the rule was broken and Senator Stevens, Rhinelander, was selected. He was not returned this year and if the old rule is not again applied, it is likely that Senator George B. Skogmo, River Falls, will be selected. The office is largely an honorary one as the lieutenant governor is seldom absent from a session of the senate.

The real fight, if indeed there is any, will be in the assembly caucus. There are four avowed candidates for speaker and two for sergeant-at-arms. Riley S. Young, Darion, speaker of the 1919 session, is a candidate for re-election, and his friends declare he will be nominated on the first ballot. Wallace Ingals, Racine, a member in the 1915 session; William Olson, Iowa county farmer and a member of the 1919 session, and Frank Hanson, Mauston, former member of the senate, are the other candidates. Each claims to have considerable following and hopes to see a deadlock for a time, with the final break in their favor. However, Young's friends claim he has been pledged the support of more than enough members to nominate him on the first ballot.

As soon as the officers are chosen they will begin making their selections of employees of both houses, all of whom will be chosen from the lists submitted by the civil service commission. The new speaker of the assembly will work out his committee appointments, while in the senate the committee assignments will be worked out by a committee on committees to be chosen at the caucus Tuesday night.

The two houses will meet at noon Tuesday and organize, then go into joint session about the middle of the afternoon and listen to the governor's message, which will be read in the assembly chamber by Gov. Blaine. Adjournment will then be taken until Thursday when the committee appointments will be announced.

SEE END OF SCHOOL FEUD AT ELECTION

Rumored That Fitzpatrick Will Run Callahan Against C. P. Cary.

Madison—The spring election of state superintendent of schools, say political dopesters, promises to be unique in the states history. In it will culminate a fight for several years between C. P. Cary, incumbent, and E. A. Fitzpatrick, secretary of the state board of education.

Gossip to the effect that John Callahan, director of industrial education and a close friend to Mr. Fitzpatrick, will oppose Mr. Cary, who is expected to run for re-election, is the latest development in the situation.

Test Teaching Principles
Such a campaign would test not only the general following of Mr. Fitzpatrick and Mr. Cary, but several fundamental principles in education, among them the attitude of public schools toward vocational education. Mr. Cary has opposed establishing of independent vocational schools, declaring that this type of education should be subordinated to academic training. The separation of vocational school work from Mr. Cary's department was done largely at the instance of Mr. Fitzpatrick.

Mr. Callahan was born at Westchester, N. Y., in 1866 and reared in Pierce county. He attended the University of Minnesota, taught in Pierce county, was principal of Glenwood city schools and for seventeen years was superintendent of Menasha schools.

Head of Schools Since 1902
Mr. Cary was born in Southern Ohio in 1856. He started teaching a district school at 17 years of age. In 1893 he became instructor in pedagogy and principal of the training department of the Milwaukee Normal school. In 1901 he was made superintendent of the Wisconsin school for the deaf at Delavan. He has served as state superintendent consecutively since 1902.

Mr. Fitzpatrick taught for ten years in New York and won some prominence by treatises on educational problems submitted to Columbia university. During the war he was confidential adviser to Gov. Phillips and was put in charge of draft administration with a commission of major. During legislative sessions his views with regard to education came into conflict with those of the superintendent. His appointment as secretary of the board of education gave him an official point of contact with the school system.

Toothache Demons Working Overtime
Why Let 'Em Do It When Instant Relief Is at Hand.

"E-Z Tooth Filler" seems magical in its quick, certain stopping of the pain. You wouldn't believe that torture could give place to comfort so quickly, but you have to believe it when you see the "E-Z Tooth Filler" in the cavity absolutely EXTERMINATES the toothache at once. It works so quickly that there is rarely any pain left by the time you get through putting "E-Z Tooth Filler" in the cavity.

"E-Z Tooth Filler" must not be confused with toothache drops, gum or wax, which bring only temporary relief. The most remarkable feature about "E-Z" is that it forms a filling, lasting often for weeks or months. Saves pain, time and dentist's bills.

NEW LUMBER JACKS ARE GREEN HANDS

Chris Wunderlich Tells About Conditions in Northern Lumber Camps.

"The lumberjack of former days has either grown too old for service or has entered another field of labor," said Chris Wunderlich, a prominent lumber manufacturer of Lily, Wis., "and has been succeeded by young men who know very little about logging or camp life."

Mr. Wunderlich, a former Appleton boy who with his brothers has been engaged in the lumber business all his life, was in Appleton on business for several hours Tuesday afternoon, and while here called on his sister, Mrs. Anton Rieger. He said he was getting out his usual cut of logs this winter and that so far there had been plenty of snow.

"I unloaded all the lumber I had," said Mr. Wunderlich, "when prices were the highest. Other lumbermen, including my brothers, thought the price would go higher and still have their lumber. My policy is to sell whenever I am offered a good price and I am now convinced that ever that it is a good policy to follow."

Mr. Wunderlich says that help is very plentiful in spite of the fact that wages have been reduced from thirty to forty per cent. The applicants are mostly inexperienced men. Many of the camps are not being operated this winter by reason of the demoralized condition of the lumber market.

TIFFANY IS NOW A BRASS MOLDER

Former Appleton Baseball Player Holds Responsible Job in Iowa.

"I entered the service in the winter of 1917, serving a little over a year," said Clarence Tiffany of Cedar Rapids, Ia., in a letter to John A. Brill, in reviewing the events that had happened since he left Appleton several years ago.

Mr. Tiffany will be remembered by baseball fans as the popular first baseman who played with the Appleton team at the time it was a member of the old Wisconsin-Illinois league. "I played for Brantley up in Canada in 1919, where we won the pennant," said Mr. Tiffany. "But winning pennants was not enough to eclipse the fact that that class of baseball was no good for the player, and that I was growing older and getting no where, so I quit the game I loved so well for the much less heroic job of working in a brass foundry."

"I had served a couple of winters in this place as a laborer and I frankly admit that kind of work did not appeal to me, but I thought I saw an opening higher up and returned in the fall of 1919 as a molder, determined to force ahead if possible and am now foreman of the same foundry."

"I am sure you will be glad to know that I am happily married and that on Nov. 8 last I was born to us a dandy bouncing boy and that all three of us are just fine. I shall never forget myself and family. I felt more at home with you than any other place in all my years that I had been knocking about the country."

Its more than ordinary becomingness whether natural or blended.

"Mink is high priced and in great demand among conservative dressers because of the high quality of service it renders. The guard hairs are short and wavy and not easily broken."

What Hudson Seal Is

"About ten or fifteen years ago, muskrat was selling anywhere from 7 to 25 cents apiece. At that time the fur was used only in men's garments. As soon as it was used for ladies' coats, the price raised. The fur was dyed brown and became popular for coats. Later the muskrat was used very largely for Hudson seal coats and the natural muskrat coats were used less. The muskrat fur is dyed black for Hudson seal, and is worth about $5.75."

"Raccoon is another popular fur which became expensive as soon as it was used in women's garments. At that time the fur was used only in men's garments. As soon as it was used for ladies' coats, the price raised. The fur was dyed brown and became popular for coats. Later the muskrat was used very largely for Hudson seal coats and the natural muskrat coats were used less. The muskrat fur is dyed black for Hudson seal, and is worth about $5.75."

"It takes about twelve skins for a fur set while it takes as many as 25 for a coat. As people have been wearing more coats than fur sets, more skins have been made up. The greater demand influenced the prices. 'People prefer the long fur coats even though the style books are showing the short models,' concluded Mr. Kiss."

"Furs are as fashionable as ever," said Miss L. M. Grundy, head of the ready-to-wear department at Gloudemans-Gage company, "and as long as they continue in fashion, say nothing of comfort, the fur market will continue to meet the demand."

Fur From Europe
"Fur prices have not declined more than other commodities and are still much higher than in 1914."

"Favorable fur developments in Europe are by no means unlikely. Inquiries showing that the fur trade is in as good or even better shape than here, owing to changed industrial and social conditions. American furriers enjoy a wider field than was formerly possible and this may have its influence in bringing prices up."

"The support of the buying public is necessary in the planning of models, and keeping fur styles up to par. The greater the energy in buying, the more urgent is the call for style information among the 'stylists' in this line."

"The wonderful fur coats of the last two or three years are and were a safe and satisfactory investment. The woman who owns a fine fur garment may continue to congratulate herself upon her possession."

"The made garments which are thrown back upon the market are the results of unfortunate planning of finances on the part of individuals, who have perhaps met with reverses which make it impossible to meet payments upon garments contracted for."

"Raw furs are admitted free into this country at the present time, while dressed or manufactured ones are taxed 35 and 50 per cent respectively. 'Squirrel is a very delicate, papery backed small pelt, in great demand because of its soft silky texture and

PELTS AND HIDES DRUG MARKET, SAY LOCAL DEALERS

Tanneries and Furriers Slow Up Until Prices Go Back to Higher Levels.

Hides! Hides! Hides! You can buy them for a song. Farmers are glad to sell hides for what they can get. There is no demand for raw hides simply because the tanneries are not running. They have high priced stock on hand and will not buy until they have sold what they have at a good price.

Large fur houses have sent letters to trappers telling them not to trap game this year because they (the furriers) cannot pay a decent price for the hide.

"There is no demand for fur," said D. Newlander. "People all thought they needed fur coats and they bought them regardless of the price. Now they have all the clothes they can use and consequently there is no demand for fur goods. There is enough fur and raw material waiting to be made up to last at least three years."

"There is no regular market price on raw hides," said A. L. Kiss. "The market is determined by the annual sale in St. Louis. The sale this year was on Jan. 17, and after that we will know what a fur is worth. Just now dealers are paying just a little as possible for pelts."

Extra large skunk skins of A-1 quality were worth $7.50 in December, 1919, Mr. Kiss said, in February, 1920, they were worth $12.50, and now the approximate value is $4.40. In December of 1919, winter rat hides were $5, in February $5.75, and the present price is $1.25. Good mink hides netted the trapper $12.50 in December of 1919, in February $20, and the present price is $8.50.

"So far this year only about 25 per cent as many furs as we received last year have come in. Furriers have a very small stock on hand. Both the wholesaler and the retailer took a loss so they could clean out their stock for the new prices," said Mr. Kiss. "The furs that are being brought in now will not come out on the market until next fall. They have to be cured and dyed and in other ways prepared for use. That is why there has not been a corresponding drop in the price of fur wearing apparel."

"One can't sell a calf hide for 8 cents a pound," said Albert Rehbein of Peterson and Rehbein meat market. "The highest mark on calf hides was 85 cents and that was during the war. Last year a calf hide netted 45 cents a pound. Beef hides are selling for 4 and 5 cents a pound, and their highest mark was 45 cents per pound. There is no regular market. Nobody wants to sell at that figure, and everybody wants to buy the hides at a still lower price."

The farmer wonders how it is that the most he can get for a hide is for $1.50 to $2, while the cheapest shoe he can buy costs him $4. The hides will make several pairs of shoes. Other people besides the farmer are trying to figure out just how, if anybody, is to blame.

Prevalent shoe dealers predict that people will go "hungry" for shoes in another year. They say they are charging hardly enough to make a legitimate profit on shoes, and still people expect them to make fabulous reductions on their prices.

Here is the reason for high priced shoes, according to one of the dealers in the city:

"Tanneries are all closed. They have plenty of high priced leather on hand and will not produce more until they have sold their stock for a price in proportion to what they paid for the product. They all took the gun when prices went up and now they are pushing the loss on the back of the retailer. There can't be low prices until everything is running and producing the product to capacity."

"There must be equality of supply and demand. If there is no demand there is no use in manufacturing a product. Just now, what is the use of selling hides for little or nothing when nobody will take them and work them into leather wear?"

The dealer thinks the inactivity of the tanneries will create a shortage of shoes by next year, so that one can't buy a pair of shoes for a fortune.

STORY OF YELLOW TRAIL A ROMANCE

Interesting Address Promised Chamber of Commerce by H. O. Cooley.

What do you know about the Yellowstone trail? What does it mean to Wisconsin, and especially to Appleton? What is its history?

Casual announcement that H. O. Cooley, Minneapolis, executive secretary of the Yellowstone Trail association, is to speak before the chamber of commerce at its meeting Monday evening, January 17, would lead the average person to believe there was little of interest to be said about the trail. Appleton men who have heard Mr. Cooley declare his story of the trail is a fascinating romance.

The speaker will tell how many automobiles come through Appleton because of the trail that would not otherwise do so. He will explain how it advertises Wisconsin and its many places of natural beauty. Its history from the time the great route from Plymouth to Puget Sound was conceived will be related.

Mr. Cooley has personally traversed the entire trail many times. He has conducted conventions in all states through which it passes. He is informed about the trail and its administration to the minutest detail. Interesting and convincing as a speaker, he tells his story well, and entertains and instructs at the same time.

A speaker will also be engaged to discuss briefly the 15 questions on taxation which will be submitted for a vote in referendum No. 34 from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

NO REDUCTION IN COST OF ROAD WORK

Highway Commission Is Not Much Encouraged by Reports on Conditions.

Members of the county, state road and bridge committee have come to the decision that highway construction work next season will be about as expensive as it was last season. Indications were some time ago that both material and labor would be cheaper, but the outlook now is less promising. The committee spent nearly two hours at its last meeting in discussing the present situation.

Some time ago advertisements appeared in Chicago newspapers to the effect that cement had dropped 20 percent, but if it did it immediately went up again for it is now nearly as high as it was before prices started downward. As yet the committee has not been informed whether the Wisconsin highway commission will again appropriate the cement used on the highways of the state or whether the counties will be able to procure it direct from the manufacturers.

Work for the coming year will be outlined at the next meeting of the committee in about two weeks. Most of the work the coming year will consist in filling in gaps and completing shoulders. The appropriation of the county board this year was not sufficient to warrant a great deal of work being done.

FARMERS' RISK COMPANY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

It cost only $1,084 to handle the business of the Farmers' Home Mutual Fire Insurance company, carrying a total fire risk of $3,000,000, according to reports submitted at the annual meeting Tuesday at Hortonville. The amount of fire losses was not above the average, but there was an increase in the number caused by lightning.

There was considerable discussion of a move to lower rates of those who equipped buildings with lightning rods. It was found that no fire losses had been paid in lightning cases where barns and houses were properly rodded. No definite action was taken and the insurance rate was retained at one-half per cent for five years.

All officers and directors were re-elected. They include H. C. Gartin, president; Rufus Poole, secretary; H. C. Gartin, C. B. Ballard, Joseph Leppla, John Whitlin and Henry Klein, directors.

CLOSE BANNER YEAR IN DOUGLAS COUNTY

Superior — Farm development in Douglas county this year has been doubled over any other previous year. John M. Walz, county agricultural agent, said.

More than five thousand acres was cleared, consuming 300,000 pounds of explosives. One hundred twenty-five families from southern states, have come to Douglas county during the last year.

There are now 1,357 developed farms in the county, an increase of 82 percent in ten years.

The year was a banner year for lake transportation, officials reported. Ore shipments have been unusually heavy, grain shipments light and coal shipments fair.

JANESVILLE CITIZENS SEEK CROSSING SAFETY

Janesville—Immediate steps will be taken by committees from two wards of this city to get the railroad commission to hold a hearing here to alleviate the danger of the railroad crossings. Action was started by citizen committees a year ago, when twenty-two people were injured when a street car in which they were riding was struck by a locomotive. Several plans of eliminating the danger were offered and residents are still firm in the demand that safety be provided.

Dr. Fred Sutherland, one of the committee, appointed to present the complaint to the commission states the renewed fight was started by complaints of passengers riding in street cars which were struck recently at the crossing.

RESUMPTION OF BUYING POSSIBLE

Big Business Men See Only Temporary Slump—Sane Prosperity Predicted.

Inklings of the situation in Chicago and the east are commencing to reach local merchants. Everything indicates an end of the business depression and a resumption of buying by the jobbers and retailers. Encouragement is offered from many directions to show merchants that the manufacturing slump will end sooner if buying will start at once for a consuming demand that must inevitably come.

Letters slung up the situation have been received in Appleton. They are from some of the leading business men of the country and show the business trend.

Mr. May of the May department stores, St. Louis, says:

"The policy which has been followed by merchants throughout the country to refrain from making purchases of merchandise for spring should be abandoned. This conclusion means a great deal to producers and wage earners in the manufacturing field. The proper policy is to avoid interruption of the earning capacity of wage earners."

Gimbel brothers, owners of several department stores, state:

"Labor must be kept employed. Mills throughout the land must be heartened by real orders to set in motion wheels already stopped and to speed up those that are running. No sane manufacturer will at this time make goods without orders, because, however carefully figured, he would have to force the goods to sale if they did not move quickly and pocket new losses."

James Simpson, vice president of Marshall Field and company, says:

"The common good demands a change from this manufacturing stagnation. If the present consuming demand continues, it is not unlikely that there will be a scarcity of merchandise during next spring, compelling advancing markets, unless merchants generally anticipate their wants in a very modest, conservative manner for the early months of the year."

C. W. Barron, publisher of the Wall Street Journal, remarks:

"While many might think it audacious to say so, the fact is, that we are laying the foundation for a business boom; first, because we are getting the money situation right; second, because there is no over supply of manufactured goods."

Frank H. Sisson, vice president Guaranty Trust company:

"The crops this year have been bountiful. So long as our harvests are ample, we are sure to have prosperity, for, notwithstanding the fall in price of grain and cotton, all those directly or indirectly dependent upon agriculture for their livelihood will have tremendous buying power throughout the coming year. Jobs have ceased to seek men and men are seeking jobs. The drones are being driven from our industrial bee hives."

MAY ADD NEW TRAIN TO MADISON SOON

Chicago and Northwestern May Start Daily Train From Fond du Lac.

A train leaving Fond du Lac at seven o'clock mornings, reaching Madison at 10:30 o'clock, returning at 3:30 o'clock and reaching Fond du Lac at seven o'clock in the evening may be put into operation by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad in response to the demands of Fox River valley patrons for better service to the state capital.

The first proposal of the commercial organizations of the valley was a train running between Green Bay and Madison. Railroad officials contend that very little business originates north of Fond du Lac and such a train would therefore be unprofitable. The Fond du Lac-Madison train is suggested as a substitute.

The conference at Oshkosh announcing the plan was attended by H. C. Cheney, Green Bay, division freight and passenger agent; F. L. Pendell, Fond du Lac, division superintendent; D. B. Curtis, Fond du Lac, traveling freight agent, and P. M. Newton, agent at Oshkosh.

Mrs. Al Scholl of Neenan spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Appleton with friends.

Anna And Elizabeth, Twins, Keep Friends Guessing

HERE are two sisters who look so much alike that even their best friends can't tell one from the other. Sometimes they think they are talking to Elizabeth when it is Anna who is getting an earful and then again Elizabeth hears secrets intended only for Anna. It's a great life and a source of a lot of amusement for the young women.

While their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schimpf, Sr., of 651 Maple street, are now able to pick 'em out, there was a time not so many years ago, when their mother was obliged to be different colored ribbons on the girls so she would know which was which. It was kind of disheartening to give Elizabeth a bath and then give her another a few minutes later because she thought it was Anna.

The girls add to the discomfiture of their friends by dressing exactly alike. Their likes and dislikes are also carried into the business world. Elizabeth is a telephone operator at the Wisconsin Telephone Co. exchange and Anna is telephone girl at the Sherman House.

The girls will be 19 years old next February 1. That is also the birthday anniversary of their mother.

ORDER FILES FOR MERCHANT BUREAU

Information System to Be One of the Best in the State of Wisconsin.

One of the most complete and up-to-date filing systems in Wisconsin has been ordered by the retail merchants division of the chamber of commerce for its proposed Merchants Information Bureau. Patrons of stores alike are expected to benefit from its use.

Various plans of conducting the bureau and the many kinds of equipment for this purpose were considered at a meeting of the retail merchants division of the chamber.

A visualized filing system was selected and the order was placed for immediate delivery.

The bureau will be located in the chamber of commerce office in accordance with permission given by the board of directors. An expert will be placed in charge.

Customers of Appleton stores will benefit by the system. It protects merchants against bad accounts which become a loss and are charged back to the good customer who must pay a slightly higher price for his merchandise. Not only will deserving customers be recommended for credit, but they will be able to secure credit anywhere rather than in the one or two stores where they are acquainted.

Nothing will be contained in the records to indicate whether a customer is "good or bad." The merchant will be given the facts and must use his own judgment about extending credit.

The state is seeing a new era in cheese manufacture," said Prof. Sammis, "It started in 1890 with the invention of a new process, the founding of the dairy school, and the placing of the cheese industry on a new basis.

"In the old days the young man spent many years learning the industry. It is only recently that young men are given specialized training, thus raising the efficiency of work throughout the state. The state dairy school has graduated 3,500 students."

Frank Cleveland, welcoming the cheese manufacturers on behalf of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, urged optimism and energy as the means of combating business depression and predicted a prosperous readjustment in June.

The dairy convention at Madison on Tuesday and Wednesday will take up cooperative purchasing of feed, the question of employing more and better trained cow testers, the milk slump problem and other matters.

EXPECT FARMERS SOON TO MARKET PRODUCE

Kan. Claire, Wis.—Although farmers in this section are still withholding their products, grains, potatoes, corn, hay, straw, etc., from the market because of what they consider low prices, local elevator and commission men believe that they will begin hauling in their produce after the first of the new year.

However, they do not look for a normal flow of produce for at least 30 days or longer, but indications are that the farmers will be forced soon to market some of their produce to get money. No wheat, oats or potatoes are coming in, and none of the local buyers will buy potatoes at any price as they have no market for them.

Although there is a great demand for hay and straw here and good prices are offered, no hay or straw is being brought in. But the past few days the farmers have been making numerous inquiries about the price and it is believed they are preparing to begin selling their produce at an early date.

DAYS ARE GROWING LONGER EACH DAY

One Hour of Daylight Will Be Added in January—Month Is Important.

Longer days will soon be in evidence now that January is here. The last day of the month will be one hour longer than New Year's day. The sun rose at 7:41 o'clock on the latter day and set at 4:26 o'clock, making the day eight hours and 45 minutes long. The month contains many religious festivals. The next two Sundays will be the first and second after Epiphany, and the fourth and fifth, Septuagesima and Sexagesima Sundays.

Sarah C. Bryant, lecturer, 1820; Catherine W. Barnes, philanthropist, 1851; H. Bayard Rustin, 1825; J. Jack London, author, 1876; J. S. P. Chase, 1808; L. Francis L. Mace, poet, 1856; L. FEW RURAL SCHOOLS ON PAVED HIGHWAYS

County Superintendent Meating Regrets Location of Fine Schools.

During his long term of service, A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, has used practically every sort of conveyance in visiting schools. Years ago he started with a horse and buggy which was afterwards replaced by a bicycle. This in time gave way to a motorcycle and for the last few years he has been using his automobile.

The advent of motor buses operating between various cities and villages makes it possible for him to adopt still another conveyance, especially for schools between Appleton and Seymour. There are seven on the highways traversed by the motor bus and five additional within easy walking distance. These can now all be reached at very little expense.

Only two school houses are located on the Appleton-Black Creek paved highway and on several occasions the county superintendent has had to assure strangers that there were just as many school houses in that part of the county as any other part. Mr. Meating says it is unfortunate the new school buildings on which Outagamie county prides itself and which have been extensively advertised throughout the state are not located on paved highways, as he has frequent inquiries about them.

WARD WILL DEFEND HIMSELF SUNDAY

Noted Social Leader Discussed Last Sunday Will Speak at Forum.

An introduction will hardly be needed for Prof. Harry F. Ward, D.D., who is to be the speaker at the People's Forum at Lawrence Memorial chapel Sunday evening on the subject "Christianity and Capitalism." He was conspicuously referred to during the discussion last Sunday evening when a P. H. Clausen, Horicon, appeared.

Prof. Ward was one of the men who conducted the investigation for the Interchurch World Movement during the historic steel strike in the east, serving on the industrial relations committee. A report was published in which the steel companies were criticized severely for their attitude toward employees and for the conditions under which the men worked. The report drew considerable comment and has been remembered by a number of people.

Mr. Clausen, when asked concerning the report, said it was misleading and inaccurate, in his belief. He believed Prof. Ward and his associates went to Foster and Fitzpatrick, strike leaders, and obtained biased information.

Many people do not take this attitude. They feel an investigation conducted from the standpoint of the church might have an element of fairness. Believing that Prof. Ward may have something to say on the subject and can offer proof for the claims of the report many plan to attend Sunday evening and hear him.

Prof. Ward is one of the country's leading lecturers. He is professor of social science in Union Theological Seminary, New York. He has written several books on the subject. He is a national reputation as a forceful speaker who draws his audience.

NO IMPROVEMENT IN PAPER TRADE

Situation Is Discouraging—Change May Come After March 1.

A survey of the business situation in the manufacturing district revealed that there has been practically no improvement since New Year's and the opinion appears to be quite general that there will be no material change until March 1. Paper mill orders are still being withheld and if there is not some improvement before long chances are additional mills will close down.

E. D. Lindberg of the Patten Paper company said the paper situation was not only discouraging but that logistic operations of his company in upper Michigan had been greatly handicapped by rain that had destroyed ice roads over which the company hauled its logs. Tractors are used now almost exclusively, the cutting in of the wheels being overcome by "winning" or flooding the roads each night.

The company has been carrying on extensive logging operations all winter until within the last ten days. There is no scarcity of help even at reduced wages and foremen are now in position to select their men. Many camps in both Wisconsin and Michigan are idle on account of the demoralized condition of the wholesale lumber market.

SCANLAN'S VOICE SCORES HIT HERE

Irish Tenor in Irish Play Pleases Audience at Appleton Theater.

Walter Scanlan, youthful Irish tenor, made his initial bow to an Appleton audience when he appeared in a pretty little Irish play called "Hearts of Erin" at Appleton theatre Monday evening. The audience, while not large, was appreciative and gave the young singer a fine reception.

Scanlan is different from the other Irish singers who come here in that he is more American than Irish. He wore conventional clothes instead of the fancy dress of the Irish courtiers so often portrayed on the stage. He topped himself in the courtly manner the last act, however.

Of course, nearly every person in the audience was there to hear Scanlan sing and dance, and were well repaid for their attendance. Scanlan is a good singer. His voice is clear, powerful and appealing. The Irish songs went over big and he was forced to respond to several curtain calls. Scanlan, many theatre goers believe, possesses a better voice than Fiske O'Hara and no doubt will be as big a drawing card as O'Hara when he is better known and is surrounded by a better company.

"Hearts of Erin" is a pretty play of the conventional sort in which the hero makes himself known in the last act and saves the family estate from plunder and wins the pretty Irish girl for his bride. There is the usual villain and the usual girl who is reluctant to join in the villainy but is pushed into it. The villain reforms in the last act as usual.

But then the play is only incidental to the star when Irish singers come to town and so the audience was well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

EAU CLAIRE FIRE LOSS IN 1920 WAS $80,000

Eau Claire—Eau Claire's 1920 fire loss was $80,000, according to Fire Chief James P. Walsh and was next to the heaviest year in the city's history. The largest single year's loss was in 1918, when fire did damage to the amount of $175,000. The Eau Claire Hotel, Continental Clothing Co. and Congregational church fire contributed largely to this great loss.

The biggest single loss of this year was the destruction of the planing mill of the J. H. Kaiser Lumber Co., Aug. 2, entailing a loss of over $50,000. A $20,000 loss was sustained here a few days ago when a wing of the Wisconsin Refrigerator Co. plant was burned.

CITY DADS BUY BIG TRACTOR FOR USE ON STREETS

Topp-Stewart Four Wheel
Drive Machine Accepted
After Trials.

WILL PAVE A FEW STREETS

Boy Scouts Granted Permission to Use Alicia Park for Camping.

The common council purchased the Topp-Stewart tractor demonstrated in the streets for the last two days at a meeting at the city hall Wednesday evening. The tractor has a four wheel drive and is made in Indianapolis. At a demonstration a week ago in which four tractors participated it was found that the tractor that it more nearly met the requirements demanded by the city than any of the others and was accordingly recommended. Some of the aldermen favored delaying the purchase of a tractor until spring when they could be tried out on the streets, but when the representative of the company agreed to put up a bond of $1,000 that his tractor would do satisfactory work no further opposition was offered.

That the city intends to resume paving operations next spring delayed last season on account of the high cost of material and labor was brought out by the passage of a resolution recommending the improvement of certain portions of Morrison Lawrence, Pacific and Superior streets with permanent pavements.

$2,100 for Assessor

The ordinance relating to a one man assessor system came up for final action and was passed by a unanimous vote. It provides for an assessor who shall devote all his time to the work, whose office shall be maintained at the city hall and whose salary was fixed at $2,100. Alderman Laabe was in doubt whether the salary was large enough to attract an experienced man and favored $2,500, but was assured by other aldermen that it could be raised at any time if it was necessary. The change will require a special election which will be held on primary day.

Mayor Hawes appointed the finance committee consisting of Aldermen Laabe, Foss, Fiedler, McCann, McGillan and Wood as members of the new tax rate committee. The boy scouts were given the use of Alicia park, but are to be under the supervision of park commissioners. A communication from the clerk of the village of Hortonville thanking the city for service rendered at the recent fire and offering to pay any expense that was attached thereto was read and placed on file. Bills amounting to $22,460.45 were allowed. A resolution favoring the reorganization of the park commission along lines provided for by Wisconsin statutes was carried.

ARMENIANS ARE WORTH SAVING BY AMERICANS

Miss Eliaeth Kelley, Relief
Worker, Describes Conditions in Near East.

"The Turks have and are massacring the Armenians because they are people of brains and power, the lawyers, artists and doctors of Turkey," said Miss Eliaeth Kelley, who has spent a year in relief work among the Armenians, in her address at Lawrence Memorial chapel Wednesday evening.

"If the Turks did not massacre the Armenians, the Armenians would have run them out of the country. The Turk is lazy, and acts like some parents whose children have outstripped them. He is unable to govern so he whips. He kills off the leaders among the Armenians every year."

"The Armenians have not always called for help as we think of them calling, but the call has come through the missionaries who are working among them. Gladstone was the first man of note to raise his voice against the outrages being committed against the suffering people."

"People always ask, 'why don't the nations of the world put a stop to it?' The nations have not helped because Turkey is the road to the east. The Armenians adopted Christianity as a state religion the second century after Christ. They remained faithful to their religion and refused to compromise with Turkey. The massacres and suffering would have stopped at once if the Armenians had renounced their religion. Had they joined the Turks, Turkey would have been a different nation today."

Were With Allies

"During the World war, Turkey of fered the Armenians everything if they would be neutral. The Armenians refused and joined Russia against the central powers. When the Russians failed them, they held alone against the Turks, thus enabling the allies to conquer in Palestine."

"We celebrate an 'Armistice Day' in America, but there is no armistice day for the Armenians. They are still fighting."

"The Armenians are worth while saving."

"A group of us went over to Turkey after the armistice was signed for six months work. Our purpose was three fold—to feed them, to put them back into industry and to rehabilitate the country. When we arrived the British troops were already there. We saw the most harrowing sights. We saw boys and girls twelve and thirteen years of age without one stitch of clothing to hide their emaciated bodies. We took these children from the streets washed them, clothed them and put them in our orphanage. Many children were found to be living like savage beasts in the caves. They were afraid of us and wouldn't venture forth. We had to put their food outside the entrance to the caves. The Turks sold these children to us for 23 cents a piece. We cared for them and brought them as near to health as possible."

"Then we tried to get the men and women to working. We got bales of cotton and hunting spinning wheels and carding combs and set up a little factory. When we had arrived in the village, there was not one shop open. We set these people to working, at first only two or three hours a day until they were strong enough to remain for the full eight. The cloth when finished was sewed into garments for the children and refugees."

Not Afraid of France

"Then the British soldiers moved out and the French moved in. As soon as the French soldiers arrived trouble began."

"The Turk knew that he couldn't trifle with the British soldier, that crimes would be punished whether the criminal be a Turk or one of their own number. He knew that if a man was sentenced to hang at nine o'clock, the noose was ready at one minute to nine and that at nine o'clock, he swung."

"The Turk, however, considered the French invaders and decided to drive them out. Turks tried to get the Armenians to join with them against the French. When they refused to come to their terms, the Turks refused them food."

"I shall never forget the massacre. The Armenians kept coming to me and saying 'There's going to be a massacre,' but we couldn't believe it. They kept begging us not to go into the market place or into the Turk's shop. One afternoon I had an appointment with a Turk. The Armenians begged me not to go. There was not another man or woman on the streets that afternoon."

Told to Fight Back

"The Turks have sharpened their knives," the Armenians warned us. We asked where the Turks had secured knives and they replied the Armenians had sold them. "There was no help for it. We told them to sharpen knives for themselves every time they sold one to a Turk. I told them if a Turk cut their throats and they didn't fight, they would go to Heaven and God would ask what brought them there."

"The Armenians are worth while saving."

BEET GROWERS OF STATE TO UNITE

Sugar Beet Producers of County
Called to Meeting at Green Bay Jan. 12.

Disappointed in prices and conditions in the sugar beet industry last year, sugar beet growers are planning to perfect an organization to overcome these conditions and put the industry on a paying basis.

Growers from Outagamie county have been notified to attend a meeting at Green Bay court house at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, January 12. C. G. Patterson of Salt Lake City Utah, secretary-treasurer of the United States Beet Growers' Federation will be the speaker. He is one of the best informed men on the national beet growing situation. John C. Ketchum of Michigan, president of the national organization, may also appear.

Similar meetings are scheduled at Chippewa Falls Tuesday and at Cornish, Racine county, Friday, January 14. Sugar beet growers are expected to send representatives from each locality.

They would answer that Turks cut their throats. He would ask what they had done and they would reply: 'nothing.' Then God would say they deserved what they got. But if they told him they had killed six Turks first God would say: 'Well done thou good and faithful servant.'

"One morning the Armenians came in to tell me that two Americans had been killed. After that we had no hope of being safe because we were Americans. The roads were closed, and it wasn't safe anywhere. The Turks became more bold. The Armenians did not dare to go into the market place, and all the shops were closed. The Turks wouldn't go into the Armenian quarters."

Massacre Drills

"In our little factory, we had massacre drills two or three times a day. We had a secret passage built in the house known to only three of us. The men and women grew very frightened and would want to go to their homes but I would not let them leave when they were frightened."

"The High Mogul of the Turks and the High Mogul of the Armenians came to my shop and talked things over quietly and coolly."

"We got fatalistic. I carried six shots in my belt, five for Turks and the last for myself. Our caravans were being robbed, and we couldn't buy food."

"One day we heard shots and the French decided they would clear the roads and beat away the bandits. As the fighting came nearer, and nearer we went out and met the troops. That was a big day for us at the shop. We sold quantities of souvenirs to the soldiers."

"Then the 4,000 French troops with drew. The last of the column had not disappeared when the fighting began again. I rushed down to the gate, and in poured refugees, men, women and children. We marshaled them as best we could. The Armenians tore down stones from the wall and piled them into a crude breast work, behind which one man with a gun protected us."

"Not so fortunate were those in the market place, none of whom were saved. The United States flag only seemed a target for their bullets. The rat-tat-tat continued all day against the hospital."

Armenians Organize

"The Armenians began to organize. Every one who had more than enough food for a month turned it into the common store. Of the 750 women slaves, 450 were repatriated. They did a great work. They set all day at sewing machines and made sand bags for fortifications and carried stones."

"Every night the Turk would make an armistice, and every morning break it. We weren't afraid, but some of us were affected in such a way that we became flippant."

"The Armenians are asking us to take care of their 110,000 orphans. The orphans are asking to be fed and clothed. If we don't there won't be an Armenian people to save."

"I am going back in April or May to help these people. There is no use of workers going unless we have something to do with," concluded Miss Kelley.

Miss Anna Alberts of Menasha spent Wednesday in Appleton.

"Farrell drove home his argument by saying: 'We should proceed toward the east, following the eastern star, like sailors in the old days when they were at sea.'

"This made a great impression on the other two men. They dropped every article they could do without for one last effort, headed east and came upon the frozen Moose river. After proceeding down this stream four miles, they came upon Tom Mark, a trapper who was going over his line to pick up some skins. Mark directed them to one of his huts near where he made them some steamin

Public Driven To Death By Countless Campaigns

Money Raising Drives Have Lost Popularity Since War Ended.

By United Press Leased Wire Chicago—The drive-ridden public has tied its purse strings and is now vehemently shouting "no, no" to drivers asking for funds to support many charitable organizations.

The end of drives was seen today when a survey conducted by the United Press showed that few appeals to the public for large funds have been successful in the United States during the last year.

The method of raising funds by intensive public appeals was born during the war when the public was educated to "give until it hurts."

Golden streets continued to flow in campaign headquarters until a year ago when the public started to turn.

Charles A. Piez, chairman of the United States shipping board during the war and who has headed many of the official campaigns in the middle west, said today that the intensive drive for funds by charitable organizations is at an end.

Driven to Death
"The public has been driven to death," Piez said.

"If charitable organizations are to exist some new method must be found for raising money."

Piez pointed out that not only does the public refuse to contribute but it is next to impossible to secure volunteer workers to solicit funds.

Driving the public became a profession during the war and continued so long after.

Mushroom campaign organizers grew up in New York and Chicago whose purpose it was to raise funds for organizations. Many of these took a campaign on a percent

ALL KINDS OF VAMPS ARE VAMPING HAVANA

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Havana—Havana is completely "vamped." Baby vampires, society vampires, college vampires, adventure vampires—they're all here.

Havana lies in the crossroads of the sea, and liners have brought these modern sirens from France, Spain, South America and the United States.

There are blonds and brunets. Yes, and red heads.

Men who once walked New York's Great White Way now parade up and down the Prado, spending money freely. Champagne bottles pop.

Doublet wheels spin, roosters fight, lights burn bright, American jazz crashes forth, and night is turned in to day.

Friends who parted on Broadway meet on the Prado. Havana's slogan is now "Havinother!"

The vampire goes where money flows. And money flows in Havana.

Here are many medicine who benefit by the largest American whose hearts have warmed with spirits.

GIRL SAYS COLLEGE MAN KIDNAPED HER

Unconscious Young Woman Is Found in Front Yard of Her Home.

By United Press Leased Wire. Lincoln, Neb.—A midnight auto ride by Miss Fern Wheeler, 19, clad in a thin nightgown covered by an overcoat, with Vennard Gildea, 19 year old university student, was under investigation by authorities here today following discovery of the girl early today in the front yard of her home, unconscious. She was still garbed in her night attire.

According to the girl, she was kidnapped by Gildea. Gildea told police she met him by engagement.

He said she met him in her night gown and when he asked her to take a ride she threw on her father's overcoat and jumped into the car. Gildea declared the girl probably became numb from cold and fainted after he left her at her front gate.

Miss Wheeler says she had gone downstairs to do something for her mother when she heard a knock and opened the door.

The man, she said, threw a blanket over her and carried her to the automobile. When he got in the car she said the man dragged her into a semi-conscious state and drove her about town.

Later, revived by the cold air, Miss Wheeler says she jumped from the car and made her way home.

CHARGES PLOT TO BOOST HOME COSTS

Senator Calder Says He Will Expose Nation-wide Conspiracy.

By United Press Leased Wire. Washington — A nation-wide conspiracy to boost prices for construction of homes has been unearthed by the senate committee on reconstruction, Senator Calder, New York, chairman of the committee, said in an interview today.

This conspiracy, Calder said, will be fully exposed by the senate committee when it resumes investigation into the housing shortage next week. He said it is similar to the combination exposed by the Lockwood committee in New York.

Calder also said he is considering introduction of a bill to require manufacturers and labor organizations to obtain federal charters. This would in effect be federal licensing and such organizations could be forced to make statements of their activities to the government, he explained.

Calder listed the conditions which have caused the house shortage.

The war-time ban on building left the industry completely disrupted, he said.

The cost-plus system, he added, had "damaged the morale" of both the employer and employee, wages doubled and efficiency halved, combinations encouraged during the war continued operations, fuel costs doubled, transportation increased and heavy taxes caused money which was plentiful for building financing was withdrawn.

TAXATION AND TARIFF NOW BEFORE CONGRESS

By United Press Leased Wire. Washington—With need for emergency legislation apparently past, house and senate committees today turned to preparations for permanent revision of taxation and tariff laws.

Republican leaders want to start such legislation now, so that it can be well under way for the special session in the spring.

The house ways and means committee will begin tomorrow consideration of tariff matters.

At the taxation hearing today H. B. Sawyer of Boston appeared on behalf of the Treadway bill proposing a tax of one-fourth of one per cent on bank deposits. He said the tax would raise $1,750,000 a year.

ZOLL AGREES TO MEET HILL HERE NEXT THURSDAY

Green Bay Heavyweight Grappler Comes Out of Hole and Accepts Match.

WANTS TO BE WORLD CHAMP

Hill Eager for Opportunity to Pit His Strength Against Bayman.

Carl Zoll, Green Bay heavyweight wrestler, has agreed to meet George Hill, Appleton's star grappler, in a bout has been announced for January 12 at Appleton. Zoll, who is in training in Chicago, accepted terms for the bout on a 50-50 basis. Zoll is a former champion of the world in the heavyweight class. Hill, who has won 15 of his 27 bouts, is one of the best grapplers in the country. He has had 14 matches in the last 27 days and won 15 of them. His only defeat was in the bout with Earl Caddock, one of the world's greatest grapplers. Hill lost the first fall in 16 minutes and the second in 26 minutes. Since then he has defeated all opponents in the time.

Zoll, on the other hand, has been idle for some time but is said to be in good condition. He went to Chicago several weeks ago and has been working out with stars who showed him a few tricks he didn't know before. The bout is sure to draw an immense house because of the rivalry between the men. Hill has been endeavoring to arrange a match with Zoll for some time but the Green Bay heavy didn't show much inclination to meet the local man.

Carl is hardly a modest little violet, judging from the letter in which he accepted the match. He is to get $500 for his work.

Following is his letter to Mr. Johnson: "I am in Chicago, trying to get on some matches and in reply to yours in regard to wrestling Hill, wish to state that I am ready and anxious for the test against him. I am positive I can beat him and will be in the best of shape."

"Your offer of $500.00 as my win, lose or draw, is acceptable to me and you have my permission to announce the match on the date mentioned and I can guarantee when it is over, I will be the big card and ready to defend the Wisconsin heavyweight championship against all comers and none will come too big or too good for me."

"I can see no reason for my not being in line for the heavyweight championship in the near future. I have everything that is considered necessary and with my youth, size and ambition I can see no obstacle in the way to reach the goal I have set out for."

"A defeat of Hill, will not add much to my record, but it will mean a little stepping stone to my progress and I intend to leave nothing undone to be."

The Kaukauna Mulford Clothing Co. basketball team wants to arrange games with 120 pound teams in Appleton. The squad has several open dates. Games may be arranged by getting in communication with Elmer Ott at the Mulford Clothing store.

FOUR BIG GRID GAMES LISTED FOR POLO GROUNDS

New York—Four important football games have been scheduled for the Polo grounds for next fall. Notre Dame, carrying a good title as champion of the west, will meet Rutgers election day Dartmouth will play Pennsylvania Nov. 12 and the following Saturday will meet Syracuse here. The army-navy game will close the collegiate season in the big baseball lot.

William F. Bailey, mail carrier in the first ward, was taken ill while at the postoffice Thursday morning and was removed to his home on Story street.

Right when I face him in the ring Mr. Zoll is to make it a short but decisive contest with two straight falls for me and as quickly as possible.

"The only assurance I want from you is a fair break and a referee that will give both the deal he is entitled to and with this, I am confident of victory."

"Kindly advise the definite date at once."

"With best wishes, I am,
Very Truly Yours,
Carl Zoll."

COLLEGE MEN WORK HARD FOR SCRAP

Kimberly-Clark Wrestlers Are Feared by Blue and White Squad.

Secret practice was the order given by Coach Atkinson for the Lawrence wrestling team this week in preparation for the Kimberly Clark team next Wednesday evening. This order disappeared a good size crowd which had gone to the college gym in hope of seeing the first practice after the holiday vacation.

The coach expects to have the stiffest opposition of the season in this meet and is driving the men into shape by three hours a day workout. The Kimberly team has worked hard during the time the college men were home on their vacations and Atkinson has but one week to get the collegians into top notch shape. A defeat at this time of the season would put a tremendous dent into the state championship aspirations of the Lawrence team. Kimberly fans expect to send a delegation of two hundred to back a team which they consider to be sure winners.

Ten bouts in six different classes are planned for this meet which will give both coaches a line on their material for the rest of the season. The meet will be run under the collegiate rulings of best two out of three seven minute bouts to a decision or a fall, seven points being awarded to the winner of a match in which a fall is secured and six points where the match is won by two decisions.

NEW BASEBALL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED IN EAST

Boston—The Continental Baseball league, incorporated, was organized here Tuesday with George Herman "Babe" Ruth as president for the next ten years at a salary of $10,000 per annum.

At the same time Lawson issued a statement announcing that New York theatrical men and other prominent American business men will back the new "outlaw" league.

It was announced that the Indiana franchise has been given to Donald James of Indianapolis, the New Jersey franchise to Charles H. Mack of Philadelphia, and the Massachusetts franchise to Fred Lundy, corporation counsel of the league.

While the new league is considered by some in sporting circles here as "a joke" there is also a feeling among others that a place can be made for it and that the present time is an auspicious time for its establishment.

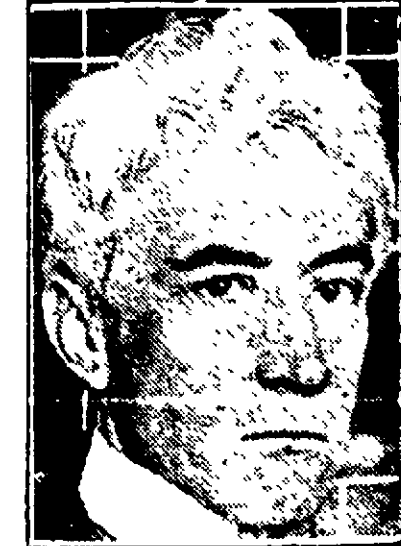

The Continental league was incorporated in the state of Massachusetts for $50,000 by Lawson, George M. Riley and J. M. Barry, all of Boston. Its next meeting will be at the Hotel Astor in New York.

Lumber Disappearing

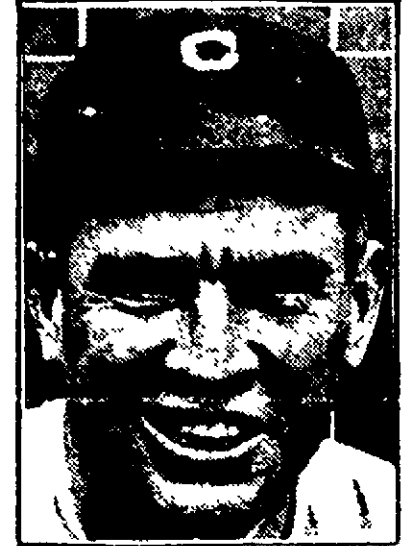

George E. Chrouser of Stratford near Marshfield, called on local lumber dealers Wednesday. He is engaged in logging operations, but says that timber in his part of the state is rapidly disappearing. As fast as the timber is removed the land is converted into farms, some of which last summer sold for $150 per acre. Nearly all the farmers are engaged in dairying.

BASEBALL IS LIBERAL TO ITS HIRED MEN

$42,500 — $20,000

JUDGE K.M. LANDIS $30,000

TRIS SPEAKER $20,000

TY COBB

BABE RUTH

Baseball pays its hired men well. When President Navin of the Detroit said "Sign here" Ty Cobb became the highest paid player in baseball.

His services to the Tigers as player and manager are valued at $30,000 per year. Ty got $18,000 for being just one of the boys in the lineup last year. He ranks among the highest paid managers in the business, now John McGraw is said to receive a stipend of $35,000 from the coffers of the Giants. But McGraw holds stock in the club.

Cost of Judging
Ranking man in baseball from the salary angle is Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the one-man baseball commission. His cut on the box office bank roll is $42,500 with $10,000 extra for traveling expenses. The judge still retains his seat on the bench for which he gets $7,500 yearly, boosting his pay envelope to $50,000.

Tris Speaker, the only other playing manager in the big leagues, is said to have drawn $20,000 for his work in 1920. Since winning a world championship for the Indians the figures in his yearly check will probably be substantially raised.

Babe's Pin-Money
Babe Ruth gets a salary of $20,000 from the New York Yankees for his prowess as a home-run hitter. He is worth more.

But the salary which the Yankee owners pay their star is mere pin-money to what he has made in side lines by capitalizing his reputation as a home-run hitter.

A movie company gave him a flat $50,000. Exhibition games in the east and Cuba have netted him over $38,000. Profit from the Babe Ruth cigar will add another $5,000. His life story sold for $3,000. Bonuses for indorsing articles brought him another lump of $3,000.

Equals Ring Income
Ruth is the first star in baseball whose earnings equal the incomes of ring champions. Other high-salaried players are Eddie Collins of the White Sox. He is said to be a $15,000 a year man. Grover Alexander is another. Alex is in the $12,000 class.

Velvet for Ruth
Babe probably earns his money the easiest.

The judge will be in the thick of baseball brawls every minute he holds his job. Cobb and Speaker are responsible for the standing of their respective clubs in addition to their playing duties. But all Babe has to do is to step into one and knock it out and he is given credit for a day's work.

They're all smart fellows. If they weren't they wouldn't be baseball's highest paid hired men.

LIMIT ON PRICES MAY FORCE SCRAP OUT OF NEW YORK

New York Boxing Commission Fixes $15 as Maximum Price for Ducats.

By Henry L. Farrell
By United Press Leased Wire
New York—Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier cannot have their usual argument about the world's championship in New York. Dempsey cannot satisfy Jess Willard's desire for another chance in this city.

The probability of the same battles being staged in America are very slim. New York is the one place that Tex Rickard and company could stage the biggest bouts of the year with the least risk and the boxing commission has put a huge barrier in the way.

The edict of the boxing solons that prices beyond ten dollars for an "ordinary bout" and fifteen dollars for a championship affair cannot be charged, throws icy water on the hopes for these major engagements of the ring.

Probably the promoters will buck and fall back upon a "price fixing" argument but that will avail little. Fortunately as far as supervision of the sport goes, the Walker bill vests all the necessary authority in the commission to legislate and enforce rulings of their own liking. Notice has been served by the solons on promoters not to arrange bouts in the future with higher prices.

As is well known, a purse of a half million dollars has been offered for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight. It never could be staged on a maximum price of $15 a choice ringside seat. The Dempsey-Willard fight, while not as gigantic financially, is equally up against it.

Boxing circles here are jubilant over the commission's move. New York wanted to see the big bout but it had a sinking of the heart when the price of the "ducat" was considered.

With this move of the commission it is thought that Gov. Miller will leave the boxing bill alone. His greatest objection was the high purses and the big admission prices which were making the shows available only for the fastest wallet.

Incidentally, it is another victory in the valiant fight of the International Sporting club to clear the cancer spotted skin of the boxing game.

TWO FAST BASKETBALL GAMES IN MILL LEAGUE

Two fast games of basketball were staged Wednesday night at the Y. M. C. A. The Fox River team defeated the Eagle manufacturing company squad, 31 to 18. The Valley Iron Works lost to the Appleton Woolen mill team by a score of 25 to 11. Stars for the Fox River team were Bantz and Hadke, while Soar and Van Ryzin played a good game for the Eagle Manufacturing company. Torno and Reider started for the Valley Iron Works team, and Saecker and Swandt were the stars of the Appleton Woolen men. Swandt's guarding was one of the features.

RESTAURANT PRICES ARE DROPPING AT MADISON

Madison—Members of the legislature who come to Madison January 12 expecting to pay out most of their $500 stipend for food will be happily surprised. For restaurant prices today in Madison probably are lower than in any city in the state.

A new cafeteria, the city's tenth, not only gives music with its meals but a real meal for forty cents. Soup, 5 cents, potato salad, 7 cents, roast beef, 20 cents, are a few of the state-bellum prices prevailing.

LAWRENCE CAGEMEN OPEN SEASON FRIDAY

After two weeks of intensive work-out, the Lawrence college basketball team is ready for the opening game of the season with Stevens Point normal at Alexander gymnasium Friday evening. Coach McChesney has been working his men hard and expects to have them in good condition for the first test.

It is probable he will start Wheeler at center; Morrison and Puchner or Basing at forwards; Sorenson and Smith or Elliott at guards. He may send several other men into the fray in order to get a line on their ability. The second game of the season will be played with Beloit on the latter's home floor a week from Friday.

FANS WANT PEEK AT BASEBALL ARBITER

Judge Landis' Court Room Is Crowded by Men Who Want to See Him Work.

By Don E. Chamberlain
By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Baseball fans are openly mixing with bootleggers, dope fiends and other crooks to get an eyeful of the man whom they expect to drive crookedness out of baseball.

Stranded between the playing seasons, fans today get their "glove league" baseball by attending sessions in the court of Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's highest mogul.

With baseball besmirched by the disclosures before a recent grand jury here which indicted eight White Sox players for alleged throwing of the 1919 world series to Cincinnati and other differences between major league magnates, fans have swamped Landis in his courtroom.

Crowds usually associated with important trials are daily occurrences in Landis' court room since he was selected by major league magnates at a salary of $42,500 annually to settle their squabbles and keep baseball honest.

No Dilly-Dallying
The judge, by the way he conducts his court, has convinced them there will be no dilly-dallying when he starts to take an active part in running baseball.

For the present the judge has taken a "standstill" attitude on his baseball job and does not contemplate any moves until he has become more familiar with the inner working of organized baseball.

"I am only a mushroom growth," the judge said today in explaining why he wanted to get well on his feet before taking any steps.

Wants all the Dope
The judge is greeted every morning in his reception room by many fans who come to talk with him about baseball. He receives them in his chambers, but his attitude is best shown by the fact that whenever a fan goes to ask him about baseball the interview ends by the judge questioning the visitor on what he knows about baseball.

Landis is following closely the discussions among magnates regarding the proposed working agreement of major and minor leagues. The judge will get his "feet wet" in the baseball game when baseball leaders meet here the latter part of this week and early next to take up the problem along with the new "national constitution" of baseball.

ARMY "RECRUITING" PEEVES NAVAL MEN

West Point Trying to Get a Corner on Nation's Star Gridders.

By Henry L. Farrell
By United Press Leased Wire
New York—Disagreement over policies in "recruiting athletic talent" has brought Uncle Sam's two service schools to the point of an open rupture.

Whether the navy shall sever all athletic relations with the army or take other means to obtain younger athletes than the ones now used, is being asked of all navy officers in a questionnaire sent out by the navy athletic association.

The agreement now in force between the two academies calls for football games in 1921 and 1922.

However, if sentiment among the officers, favors a break in relations, the Army-Navy game may not be started this fall.

The difficulty is the result of a disagreement over "proselyting," a malady which is spreading to all the big universities in the east.

The athletic officials of West Point maintain that the idea is not to recruit stars for the purpose of beating the navy but for the building up of a strong personnel for officers of the service and to train talented athletes to go out and take charge of athletic activity among the enlisted men.

The first move of this kind brought Elmer Oliphant, Purdue star, to the academy. Last year French and the Stark brothers of Rutgers were given appointments.

This year invitations were extended to Benny Boynton, the star quarterback of Williams, the two Boston college stars, Brian, one of the best ends in the country, and Flyntpatrick among the best kickers of the season, and Flowers, the star back of Georgia Tech.

This aroused the ire of the navy and caused a divergence of opinion. Part of the officers wanted to ignore the move of the army and play them despite the handicap. Some wanted the same means of "recruiting" adopted at Annapolis and others favored a break in all athletic relations.

Barbours to Install
Plans are being made for a big meeting of the Barbours Union next Monday evening at trades and labor hall. Installation of officers will be held and lunch and a smoker will be provided.
